

AEGIS announces 2010 European Energy Conference

14-15 April 2010, Prague, InterContinental Praha

London, 16 March 2010 – As worldwide attention continues to focus on the debate on how to meet current and future energy demands AEGIS London, the UK-based subsidiary of AEGIS (Associated Electric & Gas Insurance Services Limited), has announced it will be holding its third annual European Energy Conference at the InterContinental Praha hotel in Prague from the 14-15 April, 2010.

The preliminary agenda this year includes sessions on:

- The current state of the insurance market and the renaissance of nuclear energy
- The economics and politics of climate change
- New technologies in the energy sector and their risk management implications
- The security and sustainability of gas supply in Europe.

The conference also welcomes back, for the second time, Dr. Robert P. Hartwig, President of the Insurance Information Institute in New York, who will discuss European and global insurance market conditions.

Commenting ahead of AEGIS's third European Energy Conference, David Croom-Johnson, Active Underwriter, said: The aim of the conference is to provide risk managers and other practitioners from the energy and utility sector with practical insights into the current issues affecting the energy industry and the insurance marketplace.

"Now in its third year, we are looking forward to hosting more high quality discussion and debate on the future of energy and the critical role the insurance industry has to play in meeting energy demands of the future."

Those from the energy and utility industry interested in attending the conference can find further details on www.aegislink.com or by contacting Hayley Connell at hconnell@aegislondon.co.uk or +44.207.265.2100.
